FORTY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE SECOND SESSION AND SECOND SPECIAL SESSION

INTRODUCTION

"It's simply a matter of doing what you do best and not worrying about what the other fellow is going to do."

John R. Amos

Success can be achieved in a number of ways. Worldwide coordination, cooperation and communication on the "Y2K problem" led to a successful transition to the new year. Legislative success in 2000 was achieved by following Amos' guidance. The result, however, was the same. The beginning of the new millennium and the end of the 2000 regular session were each characterized by a calming routineness with just enough tension to keep everyone's attention.

Portable generators remained idle. Emergency drinking water went untapped. "Meals ready-to-eat" went thankfully uneaten, left to test their shelf lives. And the regular legislative session ended with a filibuster, just like several before it, to be followed by the fourth special legislative session in the last five years.

The legislature, unable to always find a middle ground with the governor, instead looked inward to forge compromises among its own factions. The result was the enactment of several initiatives that had eluded success in the past. The legislature implemented full-day kindergarten, ended social promotion in public schools and moved to equalize public school construction funding. Legislators successfully found compromises to begin the process of opening the telecommunications industry to increased competition, improve the state correctional system and limit the damage from property tax lightning — the unpredictable increase in property taxes that results from increasing property values. The legislature also tightened Megan's Law, approved legislation to ensure insurance parity between patients needing mental health services and those needing medical or surgical services, passed the New Mexico Religious Freedom Restoration Act, criminalized certain abortion procedures and agreed on a method to, at least temporarily, shore up the lottery success scholarship program.

The 30-day regular session and the eight-day special session would not have been complete without a few surprises and some drama.

The governor withdrew his nominee for secretary of human services just as the senate was preparing to vote, presumably, to reject the nomination. He then announced that he would not submit another nomination, but would appoint his former nominee as a deputy secretary, a position that does not require confirmation.

For the first time since the 1970s, the legislature debated the wisdom, or lack thereof, of legalizing marijuana and other drugs. The twist, however, was that it was the governor who was the chief, and virtually only, proponent of this position. Both the house and the senate approved expressions of their displeasure with the governor's position.

During the special session, the senate rejected the Indian gaming compact that was negotiated pursuant to the Compact Negotiation Act, leaving the issue of enforcement of the current compacts to the federal court.

Finally, in what may be the clearest evidence of the deterioration of the legislative-executive relationship, legislators seriously considered calling themselves into an extraordinary session, even before the governor had acted on the second budget sent to him. The requisite number of signatures had reportedly been gathered, but the petitions calling for the extraordinary session — which would have been the first in the state's history — were never submitted.

The session also marked the opening of the capitol north, the renovated state library that now houses the offices of the secretary of state and more than a dozen members of the house of representatives, as well as legislative finance committee, legislative education study committee and judicial branch staff. The capitol and the capitol north are connected by an enclosed walkway which will be dedicated to the memory of Speaker of the House Walter K. Martinez, a visionary who, when his role as speaker was threatened, took Amos' advice and said, "Let the chips fall where they may."

FORTY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE

SECOND SESSION

ALCOHOL AND TOBACCO CONTROL

In 1993, the legislature adopted major changes to several laws applying to the regulation and taxation of alcoholic beverages and to the state's DWI program. Since that time, the legislature has been refining the programs that it passed, and the bills this year generally are amendments to provisions adopted in 1993.

A one-time appropriation of $2 million of the distribution from the net receipts of the liquor excise tax is appropriated in 2002 to fund alcohol detoxification and treatment facilities in Bernalillo and San Juan counties by Senate Ways and Means Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 96 (Chapter 83). One million seven hundred thousand dollars will be distributed to Bernalillo county, and $300,000 will be distributed to San Juan county. To provide for the appropriation, the distribution from the net receipts of the statewide liquor excise tax to the local government DWI grant program, created in 1993, is increased to 32.7 percent for the period beginning July 1, 2001 and ending June 30, 2002. After that, the distribution will return to its current level of 27.2 percent of the net receipts of the liquor excise tax. In addition, the amount of money appropriated to the local government division of the department of finance and administration for distribution to counties for funding local DWI programs is increased in fiscal year 2002 to $4 million. That amount returns to an ongoing $2 million in fiscal year 2003 and subsequent years.

House Bill 14 (Chapter 13) reduces to $250 the amount that the holder of a club license must pay for a club with fewer than 250 members. Larger clubs will continue to pay $1,250 for a club license. The club license fee was raised in 1993 for all clubs; however, small clubs complained that the increase was excessive and requested that the fee be reduced for them, thus initiating the amendment adopted this year.

Senate Bill 86 (Chapter 46) amends of the Liquor Control Act to require that a person employed to sell, serve or dispense alcoholic beverages must obtain alcohol server training pursuant to that article within 30 days of his employment. The bill also makes it a violation of the Liquor Control Act to employ or engage a person to sell, serve or dispense alcoholic beverages if he has not received alcohol server training within 30 days of employment.

The Cigarette Enforcement Act is enacted in House Bill 266 (Chapter 77). This new law prohibits the sale or distribution in New Mexico of cigarettes that the manufacturer does not intend to be for sale, distribution or use in the United States as evidenced by a statement, label, stamp, sticker or notice on the package. It also prohibits the sale or distribution in New Mexico of cigarettes: (1) that are imported in violation of federal law; (2) that the person acting in regard thereto knows or has reason to know were not intended for sale, distribution or use in the United States; (3) that are packaged in a manner not conforming to several federal laws; or (4) for which a required ingredient list has not been submitted to the federal secretary of health and human services. Affixing a stamp pursuant to the Cigarette Tax Act to a cigarette package that is in violation of or fails to conform with the prohibitory provisions is also made unlawful. Administrative penalties, criminal penalties and unfair trade practice sanctions are provided, and cigarettes in violation of the act are declared to be contraband and subject to forfeiture. The taxation and revenue department is charged with enforcement of the act and may request state and local law enforcement authorities to enforce the act's provisions.

APPROPRIATIONS AND FINANCE

In what may have been the fastest veto in New Mexico history, upon receiving House Appropriations and Finance Committee Substitute for House Bill 2, the governor rejected and sent back the general appropriation bill in less than two hours. Although the governor took more time with Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 2, the result was the same: complete veto. With the veto of the second general appropriation act, the special session was guaranteed. The special session had to occur early enough to provide the necessary current-fiscal-year supplemental funding for the state parks division of the energy, minerals and natural resources department, which had been funded only until April 2000. The capital outlay package, including the severance tax bond bill and the general obligation bond bill, was lost in a senate filibuster on the last day of the session. See the SECOND SPECIAL SESSION section and the APPENDIX for details on bills concerning appropriations and capital outlay passed during the special session.

The legislature passed several bills dealing with the New Mexico finance authority (NMFA) and the annual legislative approval for public project revolving fund loans to fund local public projects. House Bill 65 (Chapter 18) is the main bill that funds a variety of local water and sewer, landfill, public safety, school and public building projects. House Bill 66 (Chapter 19) revokes legislative authority on projects that found other funding or were canceled. House Bill 139 (Chapter 23) appropriates $1.54 million in general fund money to the drinking water state revolving loan fund to carry out the purposes of the act. The legislature passed House Bill 141 (Chapter 25) to provide grants for water and wastewater projects. See the APPENDIX for more information on NMFA-funded projects.

In addition to the usual authorization bills, there were several substantive bills affecting the NMFA. House Bill 67 (Chapter 93) allows NMFA to pay originating and servicing costs from the public project revolving fund. House Bill 140 (Chapter 24) allows for emergency funding of water and wastewater projects and limits the aggregate amount of emergency grants to $3 million. House Bill 434 (Chapter 80) specifies that the public project revolving fund can only be used for loans; any grants provided by the NMFA must be funded from sources other than the fund.

House Bill 114 (Chapter 76) changes several provisions of Section 7-27-5.15 NMSA 1978. The bill raises the maximum percentage of the severance tax permanent fund portfolio that may be invested in New Mexico venture capital funds from one percent to three percent. The bill raises the maximum investment that may be made in a single New Mexico venture capital fund from $7.5 million to $15 million and raises the minimum size of a venture capital fund from $5 million to $15 million. Identical provisions are found in Senate Bill 201 (Chapter 97).

Senate Bill 87 (Chapter 47) adds a letter of credit issued by a federal home loan bank as an eligible instrument to provide security for deposits for public money. The bill also cleans up old language by deleting a reference to the federal savings and loan insurance corporation, which no longer exists.

BUSINESS AND LABOR AFFAIRS, BANKING AND SECURITIES

The legislature enacted several bills affecting business, labor, banking and securities. House Bill 10 (Chapter 12) amends the Oil and Gas Act to allow the use of "an irrevocable letter of credit" to satisfy the bonding requirement in the act. Before this amendment, the law permitted only cash and surety bonds as financial assurance for the plugging of oil, gas and service wells.

Senate Bill 3 (Chapter 3) amends several sections of the Unemployment Compensation Law. The changes include:

1. reducing the monetary requirement for eligibility for low-wage workers. The old formula tended to exclude part-time and low-paid workers in sectors such as construction and seasonal agricultural as well as part-time workers generally. The reduction in monetary requirements is estimated to extend benefits to 1,100 persons currently excluded from eligibility;
2. reducing the requalifying wage requirement to make it easier for long-term unemployed and dislocated workers to qualify on transitional claims. Federal law requires the state to have a requalifying wage requirement but allows the state to set the amount. This amendment lowers the qualifying standard from 3/13 of the applicant's high quarter wages or six times weekly benefits to five times weekly benefits for a transitional claim. Approximately 3,000 persons apply for transitional claims annually. The amendment will benefit approximately 300 of those applicants;
3. changing the tax schedule "triggers", thereby allowing changes in the schedules to more closely track the maximum level of fund liability;

4. applying reductions in rate changes to schedules 1 and 2 and extending the rate "cram-down" another two years. Some reasons why these changes were recommended are:

- (1) federal solvency recommendations are that fund balances be at a sufficient level to pay benefits at recessionary levels for 24 months. Current fund balances are at 30.8 months of coverage;

- (2) the industrial make-up of the New Mexico economy has changed, and, as a result, the amount of reserves necessary to meet recessionary benefit obligations has declined;

- (3) rate reductions in schedules 1 and 2 are possible due to strong earnings on fund balances. In effect, the change substitutes employer taxes for interest earned on U.S. treasury securities on deposit with the comptroller general of the United States; and

- (4) extending the rate "cram-down" another two years avoids triggering a schedule change from schedule 1 to schedule 2, which would have raised the effective tax rate in 2002 for employers by approximately $25 million at a time when fund balances exceed federal recommendations; and

5. changing the coverage requirements for services performed by an inmate of a custodial or penal institution. As previously defined, "employment" did not include "services performed by an inmate of a custodial or penal institution for an employer that is a governmental entity or nonprofit organization". The change includes "any" employer.

Senate Bill 8 (Chapter 40) allows manufacturers of plumbing and mechanical supplies and equipment to choose an independent certification organization to certify their products as long as the certification organization is accredited by the American national standards institute or other accreditation organization selected by the construction industries commission. The commission thus has the authority to select an alternate accreditation organization in the future.

Senate Bill 18 (Chapter 41) eliminates the five percent bidders' preference to qualified New Mexico resident businesses and manufacturers when competing for government procurement contracts for buses. The bill allows open competition for public procurement contracts in order to provide equal opportunity to sell buses in states that have reciprocal preference laws.

Senate Bill 31 (Chapter 42) lowers the minimum certified public accountant (CPA) ownership of a CPA firm from 60 percent to a simple majority of 51 percent, which parallels the current national standard. This enables CPA firms to offer ownership interests to employees while preserving licensee control.

Senate Bill 122 (Chapter 4) extends until 2005 the life of the following boards and commissions: the human rights commission, the crime victims reparation commission, the labor and industrial commission and the office of the director of the labor and industrial division of the labor department, the state racing commission, the New Mexico athletic commission, the manufactured housing committee and the manufactured housing division of the regulation and licensing department, the massage therapy board, the board of acupuncture and oriental medicine, the athletic trainer practice board, the interior design board, the private investigators and polygraphers advisory board, the New Mexico real estate commission, the real estate appraisers board, the coal surface mining commission and the New Mexico livestock board.

Senate Bill 201 (Chapter 97) creates the small business investment corporation (SBIC), a nonprofit, independent, public corporation for the purpose of creating new job opportunities by investing in the equity of New Mexico small businesses. The bill amends the Severance Tax Bonding Act to require the state investment council to invest one-fourth of one percent of the market value of the severance tax permanent fund (STPF) in the SBIC. The bill also increases the percentage of the STPF that may be invested in venture capital funds from one percent to three percent and the dollar amount that may be invested in any one fund from $7.5 million to $15 million.

COURTS

The legislature enacted a variety of bills related to the judiciary, including a measure that establishes a means to supervise misdemeanor offenders and an act that authorizes the use of mediation to resolve disputes involving government agencies.

Senate Bill 107 (Chapter 49) authorizes the establishment of "misdemeanor compliance programs" to monitor defendants' compliance with conditions of probation imposed by a district or magistrate court. In order to finance the operation of the programs, participants will be required to pay not less than $15.00 per month nor more than $30.00 per month for the term of their probation. The belief underlying this program is that closer supervision of misdemeanor offenders will yield improved obedience to conditions of probation and reduce further criminal activity by those offenders.

Senate Bill 262 (Chapter 65) enacts the Governmental Dispute Resolution Act. The bill authorizes agencies to use mediation and other alternatives to litigation to resolve disputes or issues concerning the agencies' operations, programs or functions. The use of alternative dispute resolution procedures is voluntary and does not affect rights granted under federal law or other state law, including rights to an administrative or judicial hearing.

Finally, Senate Bill 432 (Chapter 99) sets forth in statute provisions of a federal court order issued in 1993. In Tsosie v. King, the federal court held that the three magistrate judges in the San Juan magistrate district cannot be elected at large from the district, but must instead be elected by the qualified, registered voters residing in the court-assigned precincts of each division. The federal court order further provides that at least one magistrate division must contain a registered voter population comprised of a majority of Native Americans.

Since a fourth magistrate judge division was recently created in the San Juan district, and that position is subject to the 2000 general election, it was necessary to redistrict each division and its respective election precincts, while ensuring that at least one division still had a registered voter population comprised of a majority of Native Americans.

CRIMINAL LAW AND CORRECTIONS

Two public safety issues were at the forefront of the 2000 legislative session. Specifically, the legislature placed additional safeguards in the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act, better known as Megan's Law, and addressed critical issues related to prison operations in New Mexico.

Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 125 (Chapter 8) strengthens provisions of Megan's Law. A brief history of the law follows.

In 1995, the legislature passed a law that required convicted sex offenders to register their names, addresses and other personal information with county sheriffs. In accordance with the 1995 law, the registration information was available only to law enforcement officials.

In 1999, the law was amended to allow public access to information concerning certain sex offenders who were convicted on or after July 1, 1999.

This year, the legislature revisited Megan's Law to ensure compliance with federal regulations and to further expand public access to information concerning sex offenders who prey on children. The bill provides for retroactive application of its new requirements to:

- persons convicted of a sex offense on or after July 1, 1995; and
- persons convicted of a sex offense prior to July 1, 1995 and who were incarcerated, on probation or on parole on July 1, 1995.

The bill also requires county sheriffs to notify licensed daycare centers and schools within a one-mile radius of a sex offender's residence and to provide those institutions with the sex offender's registration information. Additionally, the bill gives the department of public safety authority to establish an internet web site concerning certain sex offenders and requires the department to forward sex offenders' conviction information and fingerprint data to the federal bureau of investigation and the national sex offender registry. Finally, the criminal penalties for sex offenders who willfully fail to comply with registration requirements are increased from a misdemeanor to a fourth degree felony.

Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bills 437 & 438 (Chapter 106) addresses some of the most urgent findings published in January by a five-member panel of corrections experts who analyzed the operation of private and public correctional facilities in our state. Among a host of issues, the panel identified problems with the system used to classify inmates, called attention to the high number of inmates affiliated with gangs, cited the need for improved monitoring of private prison operations and urged the state to renegotiate its contracts with private prison operators.

Consequently, the legislature worked with the administration to pass a bill to address some of the issues immediately. Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bills 437 & 438 appropriates $1.5 million to upgrade the inmate classification system, hire additional personnel to suppress prison gang activity, enhance compliance of contracts for private correctional services and raise salaries for correctional officers. The bill also establishes a legislative corrections oversight committee to ensure the implementation of the experts' recommendations for systemic changes to the correctional system.

Senate Bill 140 (Chapter 55) prohibits the partial-birth abortion of an independently viable fetus unless the procedure is necessary to save the life of or prevent great bodily harm to a pregnant woman. The partial-birth abortion may be performed only if the life-threatening circumstances or potential great bodily harm is due to a physical disorder, illness or injury, including a condition caused by or arising from the pregnancy, and where no other medical procedure would save the woman's life or prevent great bodily harm. The measure gives a right of civil action against a medical or osteopathic physician who violates the ban. Persons who may sue are the woman upon whom the procedure was performed, the biological father of the fetus and the parents of the woman upon whom the procedure was performed if she had not reached the age of majority at the time of the abortion. The remedy is not available to a person who committed a criminal act resulting in the pregnancy or to a person who consented to the abortion.

EDUCATION

Public Schools

The legislature spent considerable time during the regular session focusing on implementing a uniform funding system of capital improvements for public schools. In 1998, the Zuni, Gallup/McKinley and Grants school districts sued the state over the sufficiency of capital funding for public schools. At issue was whether the state was violating students' rights under the state and federal constitutions by not providing equalized funding for school district capital needs. Of particular concern to the plaintiffs was the state's percentage credit for a school district's federal impact aid and forest reserve payments. Laws 1999, Chapter 275 reduced from 95 to 75 the percentage the state takes credit for in calculating the public school equalization guarantee distribution to a school district. In the end, however, this change was not enough. Judge Rich granted partial summary judgment to the plaintiffs on October 14, 1999. The judge ruled that the current system violates Article 12, Section 1 of the constitution of New Mexico, which requires:

A uniform system of free public schools sufficient for the education of, and open to, all the children of school age in the state shall be established and maintained.

He also gave the state until July 28, 2000 to establish and implement a uniform funding system for capital improvements for New Mexico school districts and to correct past and existing inequities, all within the mandate of Article 12, Section 1 of the constitution of New Mexico.

In response to the order, the legislature passed House Bill 279 (Chapter 95), which amends the Severance Tax Bonding Act to allow for short-term supplemental severance tax bonds to be issued for public school capital outlay. To accommodate the additional bonding authority, the amount of severance tax revenues that may be used to service all severance and supplemental severance tax bonds is increased to 75 percent of the prior year severance tax bonding fund receipts, thus decreasing the amount of revenues that are deposited in the severance tax permanent fund. The bill also authorizes up to $75 million in short-term supplemental bonds. Coupled with the $100 million in supplemental bonds provided last year, there will be $175 million for critical capital outlay for public schools over the next five years or so. The financial assumption is that a total of approximately $38 million in supplemental severance tax bonding authority will be available each year.

The house passed a proposed constitutional amendment, House Appropriations and Finance Committee Substitute for House Joint Resolution 15, which would have used a small portion of the severance tax permanent fund to provide money for public school capital outlay. The resolution provided that, for calendar years 2001 through 2015, one and one-half percent of the average of the year-end market values of the severance tax permanent fund for the past five years would be distributed to the public school capital outlay fund; after that, the amount would drop to one percent. The resolution also called upon the legislature to enact a public school capital outlay formula. House Joint Resolution 15 was the subject of the senate filibuster on the last day of the session and died with the remainder of the senate's calendar that day. The legislature ultimately dealt with this issue during the special session through House Bills 31 and 32 (Chapters 19 and 11, 2nd s.s.), see FORTY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE, SECOND SPECIAL SESSION.

During the regular session, the legislature also spent considerable time focusing on early childhood literacy measures. Most notable was a new law allowing school districts to offer full-day kindergarten classes. House Appropriations and Finance Committee Substitute for House Bill 211 (Chapter 107) directs the state board of education to adopt rules to allow for the implementation of a full-day kindergarten program, which will be phased in over a five-year period. Local school districts will have the option of offering full-day kindergarten classes and parents will likewise have the option of enrolling their children in the program.

In addition to literacy, the legislature addressed the issue of social promotion this session. House Floor Substitute for House Bills 78 & 225 (Chapter 20) amends the Public School Code relating to student retention, promotion and mastery of standards and benchmarks. The new law requires school districts to notify parents, by the end of the first grading period, if their children are failing to attain appropriate grade level proficiency of standards. Students who do not attain specific grade level content standards are placed on an academic improvement plan that addresses specific areas of deficiency. At the end of grades one through seven, three options are available: (1) if proficiency of standards is attained, the student may enter the next higher grade; (2) if the student has not attained proficiency of standards, the student must participate in a remedial program; and (3) if the student has not attained proficiency of standards required after participating in a remedial program, and upon recommendation by a student assistance team and the principal, the student is retained in the same grade for no more than one school year with an academic improvement plan.

In the past, if a student was recommended for retention by a school, a parent or guardian could disregard the recommendation and sign a waiver to promote the student to the next grade. Under the new law, a parent or guardian may still refuse to allow the child to be retained and may sign a waiver to that effect; however, if the student is not proficient at the end of the following year, then the student shall be retained for no more than one year in order to master the required content standards. Additionally, at the end of the eighth grade, a student who fails to meet standards shall be retained in the eighth grade for no more than one more school year.

Along with social promotion, the legislature also addressed enrollment issues. House Bill 46 (Chapter 15) provides conditions under which local school boards may deny students enrollment or re-enrollment at schools within the school districts. These conditions include a student's expulsion from any school district in the preceding 12 months or the determination that a student's behavior in another school district was detrimental to the welfare or safety of other students or personnel.

Finally, the legislature amended various sections of the Public School Code. House Bill 409 (Chapter 38) provides for substitute teachers to retain substitute certificates beyond one year, and Senate Bill 67 (Chapter 82) clarifies and expands the enrollment procedures for students attending public charter schools.

Higher Education

The legislature took a step toward saving the cash-strapped lottery scholarship program. The lottery scholarship program is considered by some to be the most important measure to assist New Mexico families that the legislature has enacted in recent memory because it provides a way for all qualified New Mexico high school graduates to attend a post-secondary educational institution.

Because of lower than expected revenues from the state lottery, the lottery scholarship program was expected to run out of money as soon as next year if the legislature failed to act. Of the several proposals on the table to deal with the problem, the proposal that passed adjusts the level of revenue distribution that goes into the scholarship fund. Currently, 60 percent of the revenue goes to the public school capital outlay fund and 40 percent goes to the lottery tuition fund. Under Senate Bill 114 (Chapter 52), the split will be 50-50.

Senate Bill 406 (Chapter 105) authorizes the imposition of a property tax by a learning center district board pursuant to a new law, the Learning Center Act. This law authorizes the creation of learning center districts by action of either a local school board or a community college board or two or more local school boards. The learning center district board is made up of the constituent boards. The board is empowered to create learning centers to deliver and coordinate educational programs and services provided by existing educational institutions and entities to the communities within a learning center district. The purposes of the law include avoiding construction of new campuses and buildings and "encourag[ing] the use of technology by promoting innovation, collaboration and cooperation among existing institutions, public schools, government agencies, communities and the private sector through sharing of resources for education purposes". The tax imposition authorized is at a rate not to exceed $5.00 for each $1,000 of taxable value in the district. It may be imposed for a period of up to six years. A vote on the resolution proposing the tax must be held and a majority of the voters must approve if the tax is to be imposed.

ELECTIONS

In preparation for the decennial census and next year's redistricting, the legislature passed House Bill 480 (Chapter 81), which freezes all precinct boundaries until January 2002 in order to ensure an accurate count for the 2000 decennial census and to allow for redistricting during 2001. All of the counties in New Mexico have submitted their precinct boundaries to the federal census bureau as of November 1999, and the bureau will give New Mexico its census data based on those precincts in the spring of 2001. The legislature will then use the census data to redistrict during the summer and fall of 2001.

GAMING

The session produced one piece of legislation on gaming. Senate Bill 264 (Chapter 90) amended Section 60-2E-27 NMSA 1978 to permit the Downs at Albuquerque to offer gaming for any 12-hour period during a day. The previous law had required that gaming cease at 10:00 p.m. for a track located on state land in Albuquerque.

For a discussion of legislation concerning the lottery, see EDUCATION.

HEALTH AND HEALTH FACILITIES

Numerous pieces of legislation concerning health care were enacted this session, the most significant of which are summarized below.

House Bill 41 (Chapter 9) establishes a $45.00 per month personal spending allowance for institutionalized medicaid recipients and requires an annual cost-of-living increase in the allowance. The current allowance of $30.00 has not been changed since 1981. Funding for the new allowance is included in the General Appropriation Act of 2000.

House Bill 276 (Chapter 36) provides for court-ordered HIV testing without the consent of the individual to be tested in situations where a health care worker, law enforcement personnel or certain other persons may have been exposed to the virus.

Senate Public Affairs Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 77 (Chapter 44) allows for the treatment of a hospice patient by a New Mexico-licensed home and community support services agency on the orders of a physician licensed in another state, provided that any change in the condition of the patient is physically re-evaluated by that physician in that physician's jurisdiction or by a physician licensed in New Mexico.

Senate Bill 129 (Chapter 54) simplifies the process surrounding the donation of organs for transplantation to suffering patients. Hospitals are required to work closely with procurement organizations to identify potential organ donors and to provide timely notification to a procurement organization. The measure adds good faith efforts to the immunity provision for those who are required to ascertain whether a deceased or dying patient has made or refused to make an anatomical gift. Potential New Mexico recipients of organ donations are given priority in certain circumstances, and a New Mexico procurement organization may enter into agreements to permit vascular organs procured here to be used in other states.

Senate Bill 117 (Chapter 53) permits doctors of oriental medicine to prescribe and administer a limited number of controlled substances, recognizes a "tutor" category of licensees who have 10 or more years of clinical experience and prohibits an owner of an institute of acupuncture and oriental medicine from serving on the board of acupuncture and oriental medicine.

INSURANCE

Several laws relating to health insurance were amended or enacted this session. House Bill 195 (Chapter 31) amends Section 10-7C-13 NMSA 1978 to authorize premiums based on years of credited service under the Retiree Health Care Act.

A provision of the Health Insurance Portability Act, Section 59A-23E-18 NMSA 1978, is repealed and a new section is enacted by House Bill 452 (Chapter 6). The new provision requires an employer-provided group health plan to include coverage for both mental health benefits and medical and surgical benefits. The plan may not place limitations or financial requirements on the coverage of mental health services if similar limitations or requirements are not imposed on coverage of other conditions. The bill allows an insurer to require pre-admission screening and to restrict coverage for mental health services to those that are medically necessary. Remedies are provided for employers to mitigate increased costs resulting from the required mental health benefit coverage if the premiums increase more than one and one-half percent for employers of two through 49 employees or more than two percent for employers of 50 or more employees. The remedies are: (1) absorb the increase; (2) share the cost with employees; (3) negotiate a reduction in coverage; or (4) after demonstrating to the satisfaction of the insurance division of the public regulation commission that the amount of the premium increase above the applicable stated percentage is due exclusively to the additional required coverage, receive written permission from the division to not increase coverage. "Mental health services" excludes substance abuse, chemical dependency or gambling addiction.

Senate Public Affairs Committee Substitute for Senate Bills 164 & 317 (Chapter 58) mandates the timely payment of "clean claims" submitted by providers to health plans by giving providers the right to collect interest on submitted clean claims if unpaid within 30 days for electronically submitted claims or 45 days for manually submitted claims. "Health plan" means health maintenance organizations, provider service networks or third party payers or their agents. The superintendent of insurance is directed to promulgate rules: (1) requiring health plans to furnish providers with timely access to information; (2) implementing procedures for submitting claims; (3) formulating standard claim forms; and (4) providing for uniform calculation of interest.

Senate Bill 194 (Chapter 61) expands the New Mexico Insurance Code definition of "health insurance" to include insurance that reimburses or pays on behalf of an employer or health care plan sponsor all or part of the employer's or sponsor's expenses or obligations arising pursuant to a health care plan.

MOTOR VEHICLES AND TRANSPORTATION

The legislature made minor adjustments to the Motor Vehicle Code during the legislative session. House Bill 268 (Chapter 34) amends the Code to allow an individual who operates a boat in the state but who is not a resident of New Mexico to register his boat in the state. House Bill 181 (Chapter 29) amends the Code to make it possible to provide notice to owners of abandoned vehicles in self-storage facilities or wrecker yards. In the past, operators of self-storage facilities or wrecker yards did not have access to the names of the owners of vehicles abandoned on their property. Finally, the legislature increased the penalties in the New Mexico Commercial Driver's License Act to comply with federal requirements. Senate Bill 365 (Chapter 71) amends the law to disqualify a person from driving a commercial vehicle for at least 180 days but not more than two years for the first violation of an out-of-service order while transporting hazardous materials or while operating a vehicle designed to carry more than 15 people, including the driver. Subsequent violations will result in disqualifications of at least three but not more than five years. The law also raises fines for violations of the act.

TAXATION

Administration

House Bill 177 (Chapter 28) makes several changes in the Tax Administration Act by:

- changing the calculation of interest on delinquent payments to a daily basis from the previous monthly basis, which had required the full rate for any fraction of a month. No change is directed for the full-month penalty assessment;
- ratifying claims for refunds paid from July 1, 1997 through June 30, 2000 when those refunds were paid even though the approval date restriction period (120 days) had expired;
- revising some refund procedures and provisions;
- authorizing the taxation and revenue department to approve or disapprove a claim for refund for 90 days after the 120th day after the filing of the refund claim;
- shortening the time period for a person to file a refund claim to one year when the person paid a tax after the end of the third year in which the tax was due; and
- authorizing a five-day period for taxpayers to provide identification information for electronic payments.

Gross Receipts and Compensating Taxes

House Bill 146 (Chapter 26) and Senate Bill 195 (Chapter 87) add "transporting milk for the producer or nonprofit marketing association from the farm to a milk processing or dairy product manufacturing plant" and "testing or other preparation" to the list of agricultural services allowed a gross receipts deduction.

House Bill 261 (Chapter 101) is intended to create a "safe harbor" for businesses that are currently immune from gross receipts tax and the duty to collect compensating tax because they lack a physical presence in the state (e.g., out-of-state mail-order and internet businesses) if those businesses choose to use a "call center" in the state to receive and process orders. If a business already has a physical presence in the state, such as an office or salespersons visiting the state on a systematic basis, that business will still owe gross receipts or compensating tax on its sales into the state.

Senate Bill 85 (Chapter 45) amends a section of the Investment Credit Act, Section 7-9A-8 NMSA 1978, to allow limited refunds of unclaimed investment credit to qualified taxpayers. To be eligible for a refund, a taxpayer must have a credit balance of less than $500,000. Additionally, the taxpayer's combined gross receipts, compensating and withholding tax liability for the previous calendar year must be at least $10,000 but less than 35 percent of available credit on January 1 of the current calendar year. Taxpayers have until September 30 of the current calendar year to apply for a refund of up to $250,000.

Senate Bill 98 (Chapter 48) provides for a deduction of gross receipts from sales to state credit unions chartered under the provisions of the Credit Union Act. The extent of the deduction to state credit unions will be the same as that of federal credit unions pursuant to the provisions of Section 7-9-54 NMSA 1978.

Senate Bill 103 (Chapter 84) makes various technical amendments to the Gross Receipts and Compensating Tax Act. The measure clarifies that a "retaining wall, wall, fence, gate or similar structure" is "construction" subject to the gross receipts tax. Changes to improve administration and taxpayer convenience include: (1) eliminating the requirement that the value of a purchased service be separately stated on its resale; (2) providing that costs of construction materials and construction subcontract services for a project on Indian land are deductible, even though the completed construction project is not taxable; and (3) making permanent the deduction for "backbone" internet services that is currently scheduled for repeal on June 30, 2000.

Senate Bill 310 (Chapter 68) updates the law to continue to allow Luna county to impose a "special county hospital gross receipts tax" at a rate of one-eighth of one percent. The use of the tax revenue is revised, for Luna county only, to provide "for county ambulance transport costs or for operation of a rural health clinic".

The counties authorized to impose the county hospital emergency gross receipts tax and the permissible uses of the tax are expanded in Senate Bill 353 (Chapter 69). The amendments in the bill allow Hidalgo county to impose the tax and expand the uses of the tax to provide for the acquisition, equipping or improvement of a county health facility. The revenues may also be pledged for the payment of county revenue bonds for that purpose.

Income Tax

House Bill 278 (Chapter 78) and Senate Bill 259 (Chapter 64) both authorize a one-time personal income tax rebate of 1999 property taxes paid by veterans who were eligible for the property tax exemption for disabled veterans approved by the voters in the 1998 general election as an amendment to Article 8, Section 5 of the constitution of New Mexico, but who did not receive the exemption because legislation to implement the constitutional amendment had not been enacted into law. Married filing separate taxpayers must split the amount of the rebate.

Intergovernmental Taxation

Three bills passed this session directly impact Indian country. Senate Bill 109 (Chapter 50) authorizes a deduction for gasoline for entities other than registered Native American tribal distributors for gasoline sold and received in New Mexico if: (1) the sale occurs on tribal land; (2) the gasoline is dispensed into a vehicle on tribal land; (3) the tribe or pueblo certifies it has an excise, privilege or similar tax on gasoline; and (4) the entity is in compliance with the tribal government tax. A multiplier based on the ratio of the tribal tax rate to the state tax rate would determine the quantity of gasoline exempted. This change will address the situation that has occurred on some tribal lands where non-Indian distributors were in some cases paying both state and tribal taxes. This raised the cost of gasoline to some of the highest levels in the state for some of the poorest state residents, people who often rely on private vehicles for transportation over long distances.

Under a statute enacted in 1999, the state may enter into agreements with Santa Ana pueblo and Laguna pueblo to collect any gross receipts tax imposed by the pueblos. To resolve dual taxation issues, if the pueblo grants a 25 percent credit against its tax and meets other specified conditions, the state will grant a credit against state and local gross receipts taxes due from taxpayers subject to both state and pueblo taxes. The result will be that taxpayers will pay the same amount as they would in state and local taxes alone, even after the pueblo has imposed its tax. Senate Bill 232 (Chapter 62) allows the secretary of taxation and revenue to enter into a similar agreement with Nambe pueblo. If an agreement is entered into, the law allows for a credit against state and local gross receipts taxes equal to the lesser of 75 percent of the tax imposed by the pueblo or 75 percent of the state and local tax rate. The pueblo must impose a gross receipts or similar nondiscriminatory tax and allow as a credit against the pueblo tax an amount equal to 25 percent of the total imposition of state, municipal and county gross receipts taxes. A pueblo tax only applies to businesses operating on land owned by the pueblo or held in trust by the pueblo. The pueblo and the state must enter into a cooperative agreement to initiate the tax-sharing provisions.

A nontaxable transaction certificate may be used by a person engaged in the construction business when purchasing tangible personal property to be used in a construction project on tribal land. This provision in Senate Bill 279 (Chapter 98) reduces confusion and paperwork for contractors doing construction business on tribal lands. In addition, the bill clarifies the gross receipts deduction provisions regarding the sale of construction services on tribal land, making it clear that the receipts from construction services sold to a tribe or for a project on tribal land may be deducted from the seller's total gross receipts or governmental gross receipts. Similar but not identical provisions are included in Senate Bill 103 (Chapter 84).

Property Tax

House Bill 62 (Chapter 17) expands the veteran property tax exemption to include Grenada conflict veterans.

A freeze on property tax values for owner-occupied residences of older, low-income persons is enacted by House Bill 82 (Chapter 21).

House Bill 90 (Chapter 94) and Senate Bill 282 (Chapter 92) provide a property tax exemption for the principal residence of a disabled veteran and spouse if the property has been modified pursuant to a federal program for adapting housing to the veteran's disability. These bills implement the constitutional amendment adopted by the people in the 1998 general election. The amendment authorizes the exemption but is not self-executing, i.e., the legislature must enact its provisions into law.

Personal property that cannot be found or identified or for which taxes are uncollectible may be removed from the property tax schedule by the county treasurer pursuant to the amendments to existing law contained in House Bill 198 (Chapter 32).

House Bill 366 (Chapter 10) limits increases on valuation of residential property beginning in property tax year 2001. The value of an existing residential property would be limited to the higher of 103 percent of prior year tax value or 106.1 percent of the property tax value from two years prior. There are certain exemptions from the limitation, including increases in value resulting from physical improvements, a change in ownership or a change in use or zoning. To ensure that values in a county are at current and correct values prior to imposing the limitation, the limitation will not apply to a county having a ratio of property tax value to sales price of less than 85 percent for tax year 2000. Such a county will be required to reassess its residential property and may increase valuations as necessary to meet the current and correct valuation requirement. However, amounts may not increase in any tax year more than the sum of three percent of the prior year value of all residential property in the county plus the net new value of residential property and may not increase the value of a single residential property in any tax year more than the sum of five percent of the prior year value of that property plus any applicable net new value. The reassessment shall continue until the tax year following the first tax year in which the sales ratio for the county is 85 percent or greater.

Other Taxes and Tax-related Matters

House Bill 103 (Chapter 103) modifies the metropolitan redevelopment program by amending existing law to:

- extend the time limit for projects from 10 to 20 years;
- expand the definitions of "local governing body" and "municipality" so that an incorporated county, municipality or H-class county can participate;
- change the definition of "qualifying entity" to include a business that is the developer of a metropolitan redevelopment project; and
- in implementing the tax increment method of financing, at the request of a participating unit of government, require the municipality to make a presentation on the project to the governor or his representative and all participating units of government, including an estimate of the general effect and application of tax increment methods on property values and tax revenues.

The bill also authorizes issuance of tax increment bonds or tax increment bond anticipation notes secured by incremental property taxes allocated to the metropolitan redevelopment fund. According to a statement in the bill, the bonds and notes do not "constitute an indebtedness within the meaning of any constitutional or statutory debt limitation or restriction". The bonds, notes and interest are exempt from state taxes. Maximum maturity is 20 years for bonds and five years for notes, and interest and appreciated principal are subject to the Public Securities Act. Bonds and notes may be sold competitively or by negotiated placement.

House Bill 393 (Chapter 37) imposes the lodgers' tax on property management companies renting properties on a daily basis.

Senate Bill 32 (Chapter 43) reduces the state liquor excise tax rate on beer manufactured or produced by a microbrewer from $0.25 per gallon to $0.08 per gallon.

Also of note is Senate Joint Memorial 35, which requests the interim revenue stabilization and tax policy committee to conduct a comprehensive review of state tax policy.

UTILITIES AND TELECOMMUNICATIONS

The legislature considered numerous bills affecting the telecommunications industry this session; however, only two bills, duplicates of each other, passed the legislature. Bills affecting other utilities primarily centered on electric and water utilities.

House Judiciary Committee Substitute for House Bill 400 (Chapter 102) and Senate Floor Substitute for Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 123 (Chapter 100) are duplicate bills that give the public regulation commission increased authority, and definite deadlines, to establish rules that will promote competition in the telecommunications market. The public regulation commission has until January 1, 2001 to issue rules that:

- establish consumer protection and quality of service standards;
- ensure adequate investment in the telecommunications infrastructure;
- promote availability and deployment of high-speed data services;
- ensure the accessibility of interconnection by competitive local exchange carriers; and
- establish an expedited regulatory process for considering matters related to telecommunications services that are pending before the commission.

The bills also mandate that the commission issue rules requiring phone companies to identify implicit subsidies on phone bills, that the use of implicit subsidies eventually be phased out and that the commission eliminate rate of return regulation by April 2001. To help ensure that telecommunications companies do not hinder competition, the commission may assess fines of up to $100,000 per day for violations of interconnection agreements between providers or violations of commission rules relating to the provision of services between telecommunications providers.

Senate Bill 159 (Chapter 85) limits the public regulation commission's regulatory power over electric generation and transmission cooperatives to location control and, if at least three New Mexico member utilities protest, to proposed changes in rates charged to New Mexico member cooperatives.

Senate Bill 196 (Chapter 88) grants public electric utilities that have obtained prior approval from the public regulation commission a limited eminent domain power to release themselves from covenants or provisions that would otherwise impede the orderly separation of supply and energy-related services from transmission and distribution services as required by the Electric Utility Industry Restructuring Act of 1999. The bill also requires utility service providers to continue under certain circumstances to provide service to any residence where a seriously ill individual resides.

Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 456 (Chapter 51) expands the definition of mutual domestic water consumers association to include water users' associations organized pursuant to the Sanitary Projects Act in cases where there is a conflict between a public utility and a mutual domestic water consumers association or between mutual domestic water consumers associations. Consequently, a water users' association organized pursuant to the Sanitary Projects Act may ask the public regulation commission to resolve certain complaints on the same basis as a mutual domestic water consumers association.

WATER AND NATURAL RESOURCES

Senate Bill 385 (Chapter 73) allows the owners of tracts of land within certain irrigation districts to lease their annual allotments of project water to "municipal water users' associations", which may be established within irrigation district boundaries. The interstate stream commission, municipalities, counties, state universities, member-owned community water systems or public utilities that supply water to municipalities or counties and also supply water to lands within the boundaries of irrigation districts may create municipal water users' associations. The bill also amends the 40-year planning statute to include municipal water users' associations, allowing them to acquire and hold unused water rights for up to 40 years; alters the methods by which certain irrigation districts may assess association and district members; and allows the district to make associations the record owners of project water on the district's tax statement.

Senate Bill 143 (Chapter 56) amends the Sanitary Projects Act to allow water systems formed under the Nonprofit Corporation Act or Chapter 53, Article 4 NMSA 1978 to reorganize under the Sanitary Projects Act and thereby take advantage of grants or below-market-rate loans from severance tax proceeds, special appropriations or the New Mexico finance authority's new water and wastewater project grant program. The bill also places certain restrictions on the formation of sanitary projects associations in areas contiguous to an incorporated municipality and on projects that may be required to serve certain subdivisions.

Senate Bill 366 (Chapter 72) appropriates $4 million from the game protection fund to the department of game and fish to purchase Eagle Nest Lake. The general services department may propose land for trade as part of the purchase agreement.

FORTY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE SECOND SPECIAL SESSION

The governor called the legislature into special session at noon on March 28, 2000, primarily to deal with the state's budget, proposed capital outlay projects, a number of tax bills and the committee-negotiated Indian gaming compact. The legislature completed its business and adjourned mid-afternoon on April 4, 2000. See the APPENDIX for the governor's proclamation.

APPROPRIATIONS AND FINANCE

The first and second bills signed during the special session were Senate Bill 1 (Chapter 1, 2nd s.s.) and House Bill 3 (Chapter 2, 2nd s.s.), which provide supplemental funding for the state parks division of the energy, minerals and natural resources department. During the 1999 session, the legislature funded the division for only a partial year; when the General Appropriation Act of 2000 failed in the regular session, continued funding for state parks also failed. The legislature acted swiftly to avoid the threat of closed state parks.

The governor, in his vetoes of the general appropriation bills during the regular session, expressed dissatisfaction with the use of cash balances for recurring expenditures; the underfunding of some state agencies, notably the corrections department, children, youth and families department, department of public safety, motor vehicle division of the taxation and revenue department and department of health; and counting expected expenditures as contingencies. Of major concern to the executive were the restrictions on budget adjustments placed on many agencies. Of paramount importance to the legislature was the retention of increased funding for public schools and higher education. Legislative and executive leaders met between the two sessions to iron out their differences, and Senate Bill 15 (Chapter 5, 2nd s.s.) resulted. The governor signed the bill after vetoing almost $7 million in general fund and over $23.5 million in other state fund expenditures.

This year also saw the passage of a "House Bill 2 Jr.", House Appropriations and Finance Committee Substitute for House Bill 29 (Chapter 10, 2nd s.s.), that provided agency and special funding for fiscal years 2000 and 2001. The governor eliminated $2,345,000 from the bill before signing it, leaving $800,000 in new spending.

House Taxation and Revenue Committee Substitute for House Bill 17 (Chapter 21, 2nd s.s.) proposes issuing $90,287,067 in general obligation bonds for various capital projects throughout the state. Issuance of the bonds must first be approved by the voters in the 2000 general election. There will be three questions on the ballot for the following projects and amounts:

1. for senior citizen facility improvement and equipment bonds, $5,812,567;
2. for public educational capital improvements and acquisition bonds, $58,262,000; and
3. for state facilities and equipment bonds, $26,212,500.

The list of general obligation bond projects is in the APPENDIX.

Other bills passed in the special session that appropriate from the general fund include the severance tax bonding bill, House Taxation and Revenue Committee Substitute for House Bill 16 (Chapter 23, 2nd s.s.), which appropriates $23,365,000 for various state and local capital outlay needs, and House Bill 10 (Chapter 15, 2nd s.s.), which appropriates $1,386,000 from the fiscal year 2000 nonrecurring general fund to purchase and equip state police vehicles.

In 1999, the legislature passed Chapter 207, which establishes the tobacco settlement permanent fund consisting of payments New Mexico will receive as a result of the settlement between the states' attorneys general and the tobacco industry. That law allows money in the fund to be appropriated by the second session of the forty-fourth legislature and subsequent legislatures for certain health and education purposes.

The tobacco settlement revenue distributions were handled in Senate Bill 10 (Chapter 9, 2nd s.s.). The bill requires that at least 50 percent of annual receipts from tobacco settlement revenues remain in the tobacco settlement permanent fund along with all earnings from investment of the fund. Initially, the remaining 50 percent of receipts will be transferred annually to the tobacco settlement program fund, from which the legislature may appropriate money for health and education purposes. Once 4.7 percent of the average year-end balance in the tobacco settlement permanent fund during the five preceding calendar years exceeds 50 percent of annual tobacco settlement revenues, that 4.7 percent will be transferred to the tobacco settlement program fund annually thereafter, and 100 percent of the tobacco settlement revenue will be deposited in the permanent fund. This will provide a stable, long-term source of revenue even if the tobacco settlement revenues falter in the future.

The bill also creates the tobacco settlement revenue oversight committee as a joint interim legislative committee. The six-member committee is intended to monitor the receipt of tobacco settlement revenue, oversee the effectiveness of programs funded from the tobacco settlement program fund and make recommendations to the legislature for annual appropriations from the fund.

This year, $21,475,000 from the tobacco settlement program fund was appropriated for the following purposes:

- ongoing support and expansion of medicaid, including smoking cessation programs $13,850,000
- public health programs, including tobacco cessation and prevention programs $ 3,525,000
- health programs at the university of New Mexico health sciences center, including pediatric oncology, telemedicine, poison and drug information center and others	$1,600,000

• research and clinical care programs in lung and tobacco-related illnesses at the university of New Mexico health sciences center	$2,500,000

Please see the APPENDIX for more information on general fund and other expenditures, including loans authorized from the public project revolving fund.

EDUCATION

During the second special session, the legislature focused on implementing a uniform funding system for capital improvements of public schools. Two laws enacted during the special session addressed the Zuni, Gallup/McKinley and Grants lawsuit.

House Bill 31 (Chapter 19, 2nd s.s.) provides additional standards and criteria for distribution of funds by the public school capital outlay council. The bill allows a district with an unfinished ongoing project for which it has already received a grant to qualify for an additional grant under certain conditions. This will expand the number of districts that are currently eligible. The bill then provides that after January 2001 and upon receipt of a certification of available funds by the public school capital outlay council, all districts statewide will be eligible to apply for funding from the public school capital outlay fund. Additionally, with the passage of House Bill 32 (below), the public school capital outlay council will have approximately $60 million annually, and this bill also designates $20 million annually for those impact aid districts that qualify for funding under the Public School Capital Outlay Act for a three-year period beginning with the 2001 fiscal year.

House Bill 32 (Chapter 11, 2nd s.s.) authorizes an additional $400 million in short-term supplemental severance tax bonds for public school capital outlay pursuant to the provisions of the Public School Capital Outlay Act. To provide this additional capacity, the amount of severance tax revenues that may be used to service all severance and supplemental severance tax bonds is increased to 87.5 percent of the prior year severance tax bonding fund receipts. This decreases by two-thirds the amount of severance tax revenues that will be deposited in the severance tax permanent fund (previously 37.5 percent of severance tax revenues were deposited in the severance tax permanent fund). With the $200 million of supplemental severance tax bonds already authorized in the 1999 and 2000 sessions, this provides $600 million of bonding authority over 10 years, averaging $60 million a year. All but $25 million of that amount is dedicated to public school capital outlay.

Finally, $400,000 was appropriated to the public school capital outlay council to complete the school districts' capital facilities inventory.

The legislature also addressed public school capital outlay in House Joint Memorial 22 and Senate Joint Memorial 21, which request the creation of a blue ribbon task force composed of financial and school experts to review and analyze options for a continuing permanent revenue stream for public school capital outlay, including the costs and benefits of each option, long- and short-term impacts on general and permanent funds and other potential impacts on state funding. Additionally, the task force is directed to study issues related to the federal Public Law 874 impact aid credit taken from the impacted districts and its relationship to the state equalization funding formula.

During the special session, the legislature once again passed measures promoting early literacy. House Bill 8 (Chapter 14, 2nd s.s.) provides for a new law that requires the state department of public education to design and implement a statewide reading initiative to improve reading proficiency in the state.

GAMING

A new Indian gaming compact was presented, and rejected, during the special session. The proposal was the result of months of negotiations between various gaming tribes and the governor's office, with input from the legislative committee on compacts. The negotiations were the first to follow the process set forth in the Compact Negotiation Act that became law in 1999. The process requires the governor to negotiate with the tribes and then allows a legislative committee of 16 members to review the negotiated proposal and suggest areas of renegotiation before the proposal is submitted to the legislature for approval. The proposed compact provided for a 20-year term, a revenue-sharing rate that amounted to almost half of the disputed 16 percent rate in the current compact and revenue-sharing agreement, payment of revenue-sharing amounts owed under the current agreement and new restrictions on off-reservation casino-style gaming.

Within weeks of the proposed compact's rejection, the pueblos that had been complying with the current revenue-sharing agreements halted their payments and the attorney general prepared to seek enforcement of the agreements in federal court.

HEALTH CARE

Included in the General Appropriation Act of 2000, Senate Bill 15 (Chapter 5, 2nd s.s.), are new and expanded programs especially worth noting. The human services department receives $1.4 million to create a medicaid buy-in for the disabled program, permitting disabled individuals who choose employment to retain health insurance.

In addition, the legislature appropriated $2.6 million to increase the medicaid reimbursement rate for physicians to 95 percent of the rate paid through the medicare program, a clear step toward maintaining the availability of physicians willing to serve medicaid clients.

One million dollars is appropriated to adjust the reimbursement rates in the developmentally disabled waiver program.

Special appropriations include $500,000 for a statewide food bank program for the collection and distribution of surplus New Mexico agricultural goods to those in need.

MISCELLANEOUS

The New Mexico Religious Freedom Restoration Act, enacted by House Bill 20 (Chapter 17, 2nd s.s.), limits the state's ability to restrict a person's free exercise of religion to laws of general applicability that further a compelling governmental interest and that are the least compelling means of furthering that interest. The bill also provides for a private right of action, and waives state immunity from tort liability, for violations of the act.

In effect, the act resurrects the analysis of the United States constitution's free exercise clause used in Sherbert v. Verner 374 U.S. 398 (1963), the application of which was subsequently limited by the United States supreme court. By codifying the application of the Sherbert analysis into state statutes, the act ensures a private right of action against the state and in practice will place greater restrictions on state government actions affecting religious practice than does the United States constitution's free exercise clause.

TAXATION

The legislature enacted several bills during the special session that provide exceptions to, or credits against, the gross receipts and compensating tax, along with bills modifying the liquor excise tax and the personal income tax.

House Bill 11 (Chapter 20, 2nd s.s.) grants a tax credit to qualified national laboratories in the state to encourage them to provide technology and expertise to small businesses. The Laboratory Partnership with Small Business Tax Credit Act will be administered by the taxation and revenue department. The new law provides for a laboratory to establish a small business assistance program. The laboratory may then claim a credit not to exceed $5,000 of qualified expenditures for each small business assisted in a calendar year or $10,000 if the small business is located in a "rural" area. The credit is applied to the gross receipts tax liability of the laboratory.

House Bill 14 (Chapter 4, 2nd s.s.) provides gross receipts tax deductions for aircraft sales by aircraft manufacturers and for certain aircraft services. House Bill 18 (Chapter 16, 2nd s.s.) provides a gross receipts tax deduction for receipts of hospices from the provision of certain services to medicare beneficiaries.

House Bill 19 (Chapter 22, 2nd s.s.) enacts the Technology Jobs Tax Credit Act. This act provides a basic tax credit and an additional tax credit, both in the amount of four percent of the amount of "qualified expenditure" made by a taxpayer conducting "qualified" research at a "qualified facility". To be eligible for the additional credit, the taxpayer must increase its payroll by $75,000 over the base payroll of the taxpayer for each $1 million of qualified expenditures claimed by a taxpayer in a taxable year in the same claim. The credit may be claimed against the taxpayer's compensating tax, gross receipts tax or withholding tax due the state. Carryforward and recapture provisions are included in the act. The credit is doubled for expenditures incurred at a facility in a rural area. A qualified facility is one that conducts qualified research, which is research undertaken for the purpose of discovering information that is of a technological nature and the application of which is intended to be useful in the development of a new or improved business component of the taxpayer. The research must also consist of activities that constitute elements of a process of experimentation related to a new or improved function, performance, reliability or quality but not related to style, taste or cosmetic or seasonal design factors.

Senate Bill 27 (Chapter 7, 2nd s.s.) provides an income tax deduction to individuals for certain unreimbursed or uncompensated medical expenses. The bill contains a contingent effective date clause making the provisions effective only if Senate Bill 33, requiring additional county support of the medicaid program, becomes law and if certain appropriations for expansion of the state medicaid program are made in the General Appropriation Act of 2000. Senate Bill 33 was vetoed, and the appropriation amounts were deleted by partial veto.

Small winegrowers have been eligible for a tax break since 1993. Since then the liquor excise tax has been amended several times to change the definition of small wine producer; part of what defines a small winegrower is the winery's annual wine production, and Senate Bill 42 (Chapter 8, 2nd s.s.) increases the maximum amount of wine that may be produced by a small winer or winegrower. A tax break is given to all wineries that produce less than 560,000 liters of wine annually, regardless of their location.
